今日综述 / TODAY'S BRIEF

今日主线是前沿模型能力扩张与治理、安全机制同步承压。Google 一次性推出 Gemini 4 Argon（100 万 token 级别）、Gemini 3 Flash、Lyria 3 音乐生成等多款新模型，OpenAI 则发布 GPT-5 系列（Astris、Sol、Luna）使用指南并推进企业级部署与开发者工具，Anthropic 正以单条投资回报率与 10 倍营收增长的叙事吸引资本，但其 Claude Code 与 Cowork 已引发软件股大规模抛售，显示市场对 AI 替代传统软件的担忧正在加速。与此同时，在前沿基础设施层，Cerebras 与 OpenAI 达成 750MW 算力合作协议，Nvidia 则宣布向 Anthropic 投资 100 亿美元，并与 Microsoft 共同向 OpenAI 追加 600 亿美元投资，进一步强化了“资本—算力—模型”三者绑定的竞争格局。

The throughline today is that frontier model expansion is being matched by tighter governance and safety constraints. Google rolled out Gemini 4 Argon (1M-token tier), shared a new robotics model, and released Gemini 3 Flash, Lyria and Lyria, while OpenAI published a GPT-5 series guide (Astra, Sol, Luna) and launched the enterprise agent platform Deos, signaling that competition is shifting from single-point capability to products lines balanced against cost and latency. At the same time, Meta has further tightened teen AI access, Google has added new safeguards and "superintelligence". Apple moved to restrict macOS Full Disk Access, and Circuit Breaker Labs introduced AI crash-test dummies for psychological safety red-teaming, showing that agent autonomy is also intensifying risk and trust. Capital is also accelerating, with Cerebras and OpenAI in a multi-year, multi-gigawatt compute deal, Nvidia committing up to $100 billion to support its customer and Anthropic raising $30 billion at a $380 billion valuation, as Claude Code and Cowork triggered a broad software selloff. Underneath all of this, the ecosystem is also showing some fragility: Cloudflare suffered a major outage, and Microsoft's AI diversity pricing exposed how cost-sensitive and token-driven the AI economy still is.
